I know there is lots going on but hope you are doing fine I know we haven't seen much of each other since you left shift but you know if you need to bend an ear I'm around. My father was in the same position about four years before he died and never had the resources that are out there today. He was in charge of the ERT team and had been for years but it really ate him up for a while even though it was all cleared he had no other choice I saw the whole range of emotions he went through. I know you have tons of friends and family too so look after yourself. Everyone is thinking of you. Take care

147 1	Emails	Incoming	07/04/2015 12:34:48 AM(UTC+0)	To: Joe Smyth	Hey Joe,  Me and [REDACTED] have only been hearing bits and pieces of the stuff that's been on the go from up here obviously and know you're going through some stressful times. Probably not much we can do for you up here but if there's anything you need let us know! We are out in town next week for a couple days if you need something then to. Keep your chin up man, everything will work out fine.  Take care, [REDACTED]

Can't imagine how surreal it is to have lived through it. & be able to walk away... alive & uninjured! Quite proud of you. You did what you had to. Good job iron man! :)

147 8	SMS Messages	Outgoing	06/04/2015 11:29:39 PM(UTC+0)	To: +1709 [REDACTED] 463	Its funny, because it was completely instinctive. As much as we all inherently go through such scenarios in training in our heads, and its completely methodical, it was nothing like that. Completely instinctive... I actually put my left hand out as if I was going to stop his shot while I fired... Crazy
