Okay, I'll forward you the e-mail I have detailing the tweets. You'll see that they were not direct threats to Mr. Collins. Given that the individual who made the Tweets is now deceased I believe the desire for increased security is more to alleviate fear than protect from a known threat. I understand that some of the concern is that like minded individuals may seize upon this incident.

Doug

You will need to provide me with some details of the threats so I can pass it on to the members.

Sir,

The RNC member involved in the incident this afternoon was investigating suspicious Tweets which had been sent to the Premier and MHA Collins.

The RNC has increased security on the Premier including his residence and family.

Mr. Collin's lives in [REDACTED] close to some of our members I understand. I believe it would be prudent for our [REDACTED] members to be made aware that Mr. Collins was named in the threatening Tweets so they can make themselves familiar with his residence and be extra vigilant.

If you need anything further please let me know.

Doug
